Learn Photoshop.com is your source for how to use Photoshop and Illustrator—and everything in between. Adobe Photoshop Programming Language: Adobe Photoshop (and Adobe Illustrator) uses what's called the Image Editing Application Programming Interface. This means that instead of offering a user interface (GUI), it's designed to allow programmers to interact with the program via low-level commands and scripts. Therefore, Photoshop's true purpose is as a tool for creating and applying raster images, either on screen or on paper. Description: One of the most popular image editing applications on the market, Adobe Photoshop is a bitmap editor that allows users to manipulate images in any way they want. You can enhance or change the color of an image's pixels, add artistic effects to images, prepare photos for printing and slideshows, and apply special effects to photographs. Photoshop also supports vector images, which are images that can be scaled in any size without any loss of quality. What Photoshop Doesn't Do: Photoshop is suited for both beginners and pros, but it doesn't do well with certain tasks, such as animating images or creating videos, which requires a program like After Effects or Final Cut Pro X, respectively. To learn more: read our Photoshop and Illustrator overview, our Photoshop tutorials, or check out the Resources section. Adobe Illustrator Programming Language: Adobe Illustrator is a vector graphics editor, but it's not meant to replace Photoshop for creating raster images. Instead, it's used to create artwork in formats that aren't included in Photoshop, such as Adobe Portable Document Format (PDF), among others. Vector graphics are images that can easily be scaled to any size without losing quality. Description: Photoshop is a bitmap editor, which means that it works with raster images—like photos, for example—while Illustrator is a vector graphics application, which means it can only be used for creating artwork and images. However, it's a great program for creating icons, logos, and smaller-scale designs. What Photoshop Doesn't Do: Photoshop's shortcomings don't mean Illustrator can't be used, but when it comes to complex vector graphics like the ones in websites and complex logos, it will not be able to satisfy users' needs. [Neuroendocrine regulation of steroidogenesis in the testis]. In the testis, Leydig cells are stimulated by luteinizing hormone (LH) secreted from the pituitary gland in response to a surge of testosterone that has been produced by Sertoli cells. Testosterone in turn stimulates the synthesis of a number of proteins in Sertoli cells, including C3. In collaboration with the spermatogenic cells, the Sertoli cells produce a factor that induces the differentiation of the germ cells. The Sertoli cell factor in contact with the germ cells stimulates the spermatogenic cells to proliferate and to differentiate. Leydig cells are also stimulated by the Sertoli cell factor in addition to the regulatory mechanism by LH through the androgen receptor. In isolated cells, testosterone is converted to dihydrotestosterone (DHT) by the action of 5alpha-reductase, a specific enzyme of the androgen receptor in target tissues./* * Copyright 2014 Advanced Micro Devices, Inc.  Permission is hereby granted, free of charge, to any person obtaining a * copy of this software and associated documentation files (the "Software"), * to deal in the Software without restriction, including without limitation * the rights to use, copy, modify, merge, publish, distribute, sublicense, * and/or sell copies of the Software, and to permit persons to whom the * Software is furnished to do so, subject to the following conditions: * * The above copyright notice and this permission notice shall be included in * all copies or substantial portions of the Software. * * THE SOFTWARE IS PROVIDED "AS IS", WITHOUT WARRANTY OF ANY KIND, EXPRESS OR * IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO THE WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY, * FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE AND NONINFRINGEMENT. The Trump administration is trying to put the brakes on plans to protect Australia's Great Barrier Reef from climate change, according to reports, as the president travels to the G20 summit in Osaka. US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo is scheduled to hold talks with Australian Prime Minister Scott Morrison on the weekend and will ask him to cancel an independent assessment on the threat posed to the reef, according to The Washington Post. The report, citing "foreign diplomats and Australian government officials briefed on the matter", says the move would represent a "worsening diplomatic crisis" for the Coalition. The Washington Post says a senior US State Department official "declined to discuss the sensitive matter, saying only that the US 'will continue to consult closely with our Australian partners'". The development comes as the world's attention remains fixed on what will be a high-profile diplomatic spat between the US president and Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull. Mr Trump is arriving in Osaka to attend the G20 summit on Sunday, and the Australian government is furious with its leader over a phone call earlier this month in which he backed out of a deal to resettle refugees in Australia. Since 2015, more than 2,200 asylum seekers have settled in Australia thanks to the agreement. Mr Turnbull has been one of the strongest critics of the president since he withdrew from the pact, and he was reportedly told to prepare for a "historic blowout" in US-Australia relations during a phone call this month. The Washington Post says that Australian officials are worried that Mr Trump will use the talks in Osaka to demand that Mr Turnbull cancel the report. The US Secretary of State is the country's chief diplomat, and the report was penned by the Australian government's Great Barrier Reef marine authority. Mr Trump has previously accused the report of being "fake news". Mr Morrison "is seeking to parry Mr Trump's intervention through the United States," the Washington Post reports. "According to Canberra insiders, the prime minister's decision-making model was to try to push forward, and keep up the pressure on the Trump administration to force it to abandon the proposal." Mr Morrison has challenged Mr Trump to "show some leadership" on the issue. "The Australian government is definitely not looking at backing down on this," Mr Morrison told ABC this month
